

Miley Cyrus, Lady Gaga and the Catholic Church

This will be just a very brief video on the amazing headlines that Miley Cyrus made earlier this week, because she was attacked for her lewd dancing and this really surprised me. I mean, when was the last time the media was shocked by lewd dancing? So I thought I would investigate why Miley Cyrus was attacked, but not Lady Gaga. I mean Gaga stripped down to an even teenier, tinier bikini than Miley Cyrus wore.

Now, I did not watch her myself: I only saw the first half of Gaga's performance. I am going by news reports and by Google images. So here is my explanation: Miley Cyrus did not make fun of the Catholic Church. I mean both Miley Cyrus and Lady Gaga are emulating Madonna. According to Forbes Magazine, Madonna made over a hundred million dollars last year. She was the highest-paid entertainer in the entire business. And of course Madonna always makes fun of the Catholic Church. Even her name is a mockery of the Blessed Virgin Mary, and as far as I can see, the only real difference between Gaga's performance at the AMA awards and Miley Cyrus's, is that Lady Gaga made fun of the Catholic nuns.

Here is how Lady Gaga appeared dressed at the opening of her act in a very weird nun's costume.

But that's not all. She had instructed members of the audience to boo her appearance as a nun. Watch this very interesting clip. (Audience boos and music). Now that booing was not accidental. Lady Gaga had her people in the audience in order to stimulate the booing of her appearance as a nun. She knows that the Catholic Church is a barrier to her stripping. The symbolism of this square box around her head in this weird nun's costume is that the Catholic Church restricts her freedom of expression; that it is square and old fashioned, that it boxed her in.

Of course as soon as Lady Gaga started taking off her clothes, including the nun costume, then she took down her boo signs, and the audience started applauding again. And so in conclusion, Miley Cyrus, if you really want to get the media off your back and start applauding your slutty dancing, you've got to imitate Madonna and Lady Gaga more carefully. You will have to attack the only force that really opposes your actions, and that is the Catholic Church.